

Changes to publication grant applications

Publication grants worth $1000 each will now be awarded throughout the year, until the allocated yearly sum runs out. Your manuscript needs to have been accepted or been accepted subject to final minor revisions. You will still need to submit an application that will be peer-reviewed. Hindsight!

We will be running a session for new (and old) Research Fellows on professional development including advice on service, teaching, administration, funding and publishing.

We will be building on similar past sessions and want to hear from you topics to include in our session, that you wish you had known at the beginning of your career that would have been a benefit to career progression. Email us!
