Call for Posters

This year, ASIACCS will again include a poster session to provide a forum for presenting and discussing work in progress, upcoming research challenges, new research directions, and novel approaches in the field of computer and communications security. High-quality poster presentations are an important part of ASIACCS. We particularly value posters on interdisciplinary work among researchers from different disciplines and/or joint work among academia and industry.

Submission Guidelines

Authors are asked to submit a short proposal that describes the main contributions of the poster. Proposals should contain a brief abstract, place an emphasis on the motivation for the work, and summarize contributions being presented. Preliminary results may also be included. The proposal should clearly state the difference of the work that will be presented with any paper published or under submission on the same topic. Presentation proposals will be evaluated primarily on their potential to stimulate interesting discussions, facilitate the exchange of ideas, and promote collaborations. Authors of accepted poster proposals will be provided instructions for preparing the posters. Tripods will be provided to display all accepted posters.

Proposals must follow the new ACM conference template (Use sigconf style), with 3 pages maximum (i.e., including title, abstract, content, and any references). Proposals are not blinded, and must contain the authors' names, affiliations, and contact information. All poster titles must begin with the keyword "POSTER:". Submissions that are not formatted as described above risk rejection without review. All submissions must designate a single corresponding author. At least one presenter per accepted poster must register for the conference. The accepted posters will be published in the proceedings.
