Welcome to the High-Value Nutrition Conference 2017

We want to make our annual conference a unique forum, an environment to reflect genuine intellectual and commercial curiosity and provide the space to take stock of the state of play when it comes to the creation, development and export of high-value foods.

As a recent report noted, New Zealand has significant advantages. We are a country “surrounded by the Pacific ocean, enjoying the light of Spain with the climate of Bordeaux.” The conference is about how the Challenge, its institutional and industry partners and innovative food businesses, are turning that advantage into reality so New Zealand Inc. can prosper.

The conference is our opportunity to tell you about the great progress made by teams of researchers working in collaboration across the country. It’s also the chance for you to hear from people at the sharp end, delivering innovative nutrition products to our major markets. Experience is the best teacher.

At High-Value Nutrition our role is to be the pre-competitive enabler of the high-value food ecosystem. We support the research that would not be done otherwise for the benefit of New Zealand Inc. The research excellence would be worth little unless it can be applied, so we also gather the market intelligence in the form of consumer insights, and reports on the regulatory and patent landscape so New Zealand companies enter new markets armed with insight and hard information.

We look forward to meeting you at Nutrition Science Fuelling Innovation, the High-Value Nutrition National Science Challenge conference 2017. Bringing research and industry together.
