The Australian Music Centre exists to make available and promote the widespread use of music created by Australians. It is the national organisation which informs, produces, promotes and sells.

Library/Resource Centre

Over 10,000 works by more than 300 Australian composers are represented in the Australian Music Centre Library. The collection concentrates on the works of contemporary composers and is the unique source for many of these items. The Library also produces catalogues available for sale including: Piano Music Catalogue ($10.00), Vocal Music Catalogue ($10.00), Choral Music Catalogue ($10.00), Orchestral Music Catalogue ($10.00), String Music Catalogue ($10.00), Directory of Choirs ($3.00), Directory of Ensembles ($6.00), Brass Music Catalogue ($8.00), AMC Newsletter (compiled) ($50.00), Index of articles in the Sounds Australian Journal ($19.95).

Sales

The commercial arm of the AMC sells recordings, scores, teacher resource materials and publications. Education resource kits (recordings and texts) produced by the AMC cover Australian classical, popular, jazz, folk and world music. Many of the unpublished scores in the library collection are available for sale or hire under licence from the composers through a facsimile score service. There is no other source for most of this music. Free catalogues are available on application including: Recordings Catalogue, Recordings with Matching Scores, Publications, Selected works for Final Year Performance, Aboriginal Resources Catalogue.

Sounds Australian

The Sounds Australian shop situated in The Rocks in Sydney showcases the diversity of music making in Australia through its comprehensive collection of recordings available for sale. It is the only shop that specialises in the finest music this country has to offer. Recordings of all styles of Australian music are available: Australian classical music, jazz, folk, rock and pop, contemporary and traditional Aboriginal music, ethnic and world music, environmental, experimental, electronic and computer music ... and much more. All items are also available by mail order.

The Australian Music Centre is a unique, and often the only, source for Australian Music, and we are here to help!
