

This Is Me

By Grace

I am Passionate

I wonder if I can change minds

I hear the cry of unhappy people and the sound of my own tears as I wish I could help them

I see help is needed and the news showing those that have lost all hope

I want an eco-future where everyone is treated fairly all over the world no matter what circumstances

I am passionate

I pretend problems are not there and that they are taken care of by others

I feel emotions rising when I see the refugee's struggles

I touch people's feelings and hopes

I worry if I can't change things

I cry when I realise I don't have the world in my hands

I am passionate

I understand I can't have everything my way

I say "I will make a difference"

I dream people will be treated fairly, with their culture, looks and traditions and that others will learn to accept that

I try to look past my problems, sometimes, and feel for others

I hope that I/we will see a better future for those who need it

I am passionate
