

Madi sits with Julia. They are good friends. They help each other with work. Today Madi is helping Julia in maths. They are struggling with trigonometry.

“So you should have 4.” Julia was gleeful “I HAVE 4! I GOT IT RIGHT!”

Miss Trikilis spoke, “25 is correct Molly.”

Oh dear.

Ahhh city slickers and townies, so naïve. Hardly know a cow from a sheep. The things they ask me - “How do you tell which ones are the bulls?”. You will be wondering too. I'll give you a hint: if it has balls hanging between its legs, it's probably a boy.

Julia Williams