

The Online Epidemic

What are your children really doing?

By Madeline Evans

Do your children spend hours online wasting away their lives when they could be outside acting less pathetic? Well, I have the answer for you.

Studies (that I have undergone) have shown that if you give your children 2 doughnuts a day, they will be more inclined to get offline and go outside (to undergo weight-losing activities).

Virtual MMO RPG PVP FPS SPS TPS games can be dangerous for your child's in-game character as said character may die. This would hurt your child's feelings.

If you do not ban your child, they could end up living in your basement, eating Cheetos, with no money, no job and no life.

So, what do you think? Online virtual worlds are bad for kids. You should keep this in mind so you can give your child a less pathetic start to life.

